Keep in hard copy near main telephones:
This document outlines procedures for dealing with possible emergency scenarios that may arise in the course of study abroad programs. It also identifies the roles played by the Office of International Affairs as the first point of contact for IUPUI programs and that of IU-Bloomington as backup in its capacity as operative safety and risk managers for the IU system.

In an emergency, any staff member taking the first notification phone call will:

1. Write down:
   - Caller’s name, and phone/e-mail contact info
   - Title of the program involved
   - Location of emergency
   - A few key details

2. Refer the caller immediately to Stephanie Leslie (317-278-0716). If she is not available the call should then go to Kevanne Monkhouse (317-278-2097). If she is not available then seek out Sara Allaei (317-274-3261) or the most senior person present for handling of further communication.

   DO NOT HANG UP UNTIL YOU HAVE CONFIRMED THAT THE CALLER HAS CONNECTED WITH A LIVE PERSON.

3. Immediately take information collected in #1 to the person who is fielding the phone call.

4. If no one is present in this capacity – or immediately so – the staff member will:
   o proceed to the relevant question lists outlined here,
   o obtain information in detail,
   o promise contact within 30 minutes,
   o will then contact on an emergency basis one of the following as the first point of contact:

For Emergencies Dial 9-1-1

HELP AVAILABLE: DRAFT OPTIONS

Below is important information to consider. Please see contact options under the “Resources” section.

Find a safe place
Most importantly, call 911 if you are in immediate danger and try to get to a safe place. Once you are safe, contact someone you trust to be with you for support. This could be a friend, family member, a resident assistant or even a trained sexual assault advocate.

Seek medical attention
Medical attention should be sought as soon as possible. It is important to mitigate the risk of sexually transmitted infections or pregnancy and to treat any physical injuries.

Preserve evidence of the incident
If you have concerns about preserving evidence related to a sexual misconduct, it is important to preserve any evidence that may be helpful should you decide to pursue a university or criminal complaint, or obtain a protective order. Physical evidence is best collected as soon as possible or at least within 96 hours of the assault. Do not do any of the following things until you've seen a medical professional and police contact.
- Bathe or shower
- Change clothes or comb hair
- Clean up the crime scene
- Move anything the offender may have touched

It is best not to try to collect the physical evidence yourself but seek assistance from medical staff or law enforcement personnel. Consider also preserving any electronic and other forms of physical evidence (e.g., text messages, social media posts, receipts, photos).

Counseling support is available
Counseling is recommended during this difficult time. Whether services are sought on campus or in the community, remember that self-care is an important part of coping with the event. Confidential counselors are available on campus (see “Confidentiality & Privacy”).

Consider reporting the incident
There are several reporting options including reporting to campus or local law enforcement. Reporting to a campus
- Deputy Title IX Coordinator, through the student Conduct system, or online reporting at StopSexualViolence.iu.edu. Campus authorities can assist in notifying law enforcement if requested, however, you may also decline to notify law enforcement.
If a participant is missing:

- When was he or she last seen?

- Does anyone have any idea about where they might have gone?

- If they had left and were expected to return at a specific time, when was the date and time of the expected return?

- Did the participant tell anyone of plans to be absent?

- Are search and rescue operations available on site and are these reliable?

- Have they already been initiated? If not, should they be?

- If other students are enlisted to search, have they been briefed adequately on what to do if they find the missing student or the various scenarios they may encounter?

- If you have determined that the student is truly likely to be missing, proceed with the following questions:

  - Has the US Embassy been contacted?

  - Have the local missing persons officials been notified?

  - What is the case number?
If a student has been arrested:

- Has he or she been detained?

- Has the U.S. Embassy been notified?

- What has their response been? What is their advice?

- What agency made the arrest and filed the charges?

- What are the names, addresses and phone numbers of arresting authorities?

- What is the case number?

- What rights have been granted?

- Is he/she entitled to place a phone call?

- Is appropriate legal counsel available?
If a student has been taken hostage:

- Has the U.S. Embassy been notified?

- What is the Embassy's advice?

- Have the kidnappers made contact?

- Is negotiation support available on site?

- Who are the contact people at the Embassy, and at the State Department in Washington, D.C and what are their titles and contact numbers?
If the emergency is political in nature or if a natural or man-made disaster has occurred:

- Has the U.S. Embassy advised participants to take any actions?

- Have all participants been made aware of these precautions, and in writing?

- Are all participants following these precautions?

- Have local authorities imposed a curfew?

- Is travel in or out of the country being restricted in any way?

- Is the group in danger?

- Who or what is the target of any unrest?

- Has any particular group or organization been threatened?

- What kind of military or other security or public safety personnel are present?

- Are they unusually visible?

- How are they behaving with respect to the civilian population?

- Is evacuation a desirable and viable action?
Overview

The Office of Overseas Study at Indiana University (IU) is charged with the responsibility of coordinating the management of emergencies affecting participants in all IU-approved study abroad programs. In the case of campus- or school-specific IU programs, that responsibility is shared with the Office of International Affairs at IUPUI.

Assuring the safety and well-being of students, faculty and staff who are participating in IU programs abroad is of the highest importance, and all reasonable actions will be taken to accomplish this.

While acknowledging that no single plan can address all contingencies, the Office of Overseas Study (OVST) recognizes the importance of establishing, in advance, policies and procedures that are designed to safeguard the safety and well-being of study abroad participants and to limit IU's legal liability. These policies and procedures, described in detail below, will serve to guide IU's response to crises affecting participants abroad.

We should draw a distinction between "real" and "perceived" emergencies. Real emergencies are those that pose a genuine and sometimes immediate risk to, or that have already disturbed, the safety and well-being of participants. These include such occurrences as coups and other civil disturbances; natural and man-made disasters; incarcerations; serious physical or emotional illness; accidents; physical assaults; disappearances or kidnappings; and terrorist threats and attacks.

Perceived emergencies are those which pose no significant risks to the safety and well-being of participants, but which are seen as threatening by family members in the U.S. or by others, including, at times, students and colleagues at the home university. Perceptions of threat can arise out of a number of situations, including the sensationalized reporting of an event abroad; the distortion of information provided by a participant in a telephone call, e-mail message, fax or letter home; or simply out of the nervousness of a family member or student with little or no international experience. Such perceptions will sometimes affect family members and others in the U.S. more strongly than will real emergencies, and need to be treated seriously.

By closely following the procedures outlined below, the staff of OIA will be able to gather information that will allow them to respond appropriately to real emergencies, or to place a perceived emergency in its proper context, and thereby reassure family members and others in the U.S. Other units at IU with responsibility for campus- or school-specific programs are expected to follow the same procedures and to consult with OIA as appropriate.

After working hours, on weekends and holidays, a call to the Study Abroad Emergency Phone (317-409-2925) will reach the staff member who is on call for emergencies. To be prepared to answer calls in such cases, all staff who will handle emergency phone calls should have updated copies of the following at home: (1) access to iAbroad, (2) phone numbers for OIA staff and the contact list of relevant IU/IUPUI staff saved on the emergency phone (3) these procedures.
Operating Principles

In managing emergencies, real or perceived, OIA will be guided in its decision-making, before, during and after a crisis, by the following operating principles:

1. All responses to a crisis will be governed by the highest concern for the safety and well-being of students, faculty and staff participating in any IUPUI-sponsored study abroad program as well as IU students participating in external programs.

2. OIA will exercise caution and restraint in deciding when, and with whom, information about an emergency should be shared, and will operate according to the procedures outlined below in deciding how information should be shared. We will, from the outset, however, contact IU’s Director of News and Media or his/her designate and the Vice-Chancellor for Student Life to coordinate responses and resources.

3. All reasonable and prudent measures will be taken to limit IU’s legal liabilities.

4. OIA will respond to emergencies by closely following the procedures outlined below, except when otherwise directed by circumstances or agencies outside IU’s control.

Procedures

When an emergency, real or perceived, is reported, OIA will follow specific, pre-determined procedures in managing the emergency, in the order that they appear in this text.

PHASE I: An emergency is reported to the Office of International Affairs

A. Whoever learns of an emergency involving an IU student, faculty or staff member on an IUPUI-sponsored study abroad program should immediately contact OIA. If any IUPUI faculty or staff member learns of a crisis on an IUPUI study abroad program s/he should, in turn, inform OIA.

Every effort should be made to reach OIA by telephone, rather than by e-mail or fax. OIA will coordinate IU’s response to the crisis until it has passed.

PHASE II: OIA determines whether the emergency is real or perceived

A. OIA will gather as much information as is necessary to determine what risks, if any, study abroad participants are facing. In assessing these risks, appropriate people and organizations will be contacted, by telephone if at all possible.

B. In assessing whether the emergency is real or perceived, the appropriate staff member of OIA will contact a number of sources for detailed and accurate information.

The following people and organizations may be contacted (the OIA staff member determining the status of the crisis will check off these contacts if and as they are made):

- First and foremost, the IU Program Director or local coordinator abroad, the co-sponsored program administrator or the individual in charge of a non-IU program.
- The U.S. State Department Desk Officer of the country affected (call 202-647-4000 for specific contact information or see the Department of State Web page: www.state.gov).

It may be useful to contact the following organizations as well:

- Study Abroad and International Program Offices of other universities and colleges with programs in the same city or country.
- The U.S. State Department's Citizens Emergency Center, which deals with serious illness, death, financial crisis due to theft, or arrest (call 202-501-4444).
- The U.S. Embassy in the appropriate country (see the Department of State web page for contact information).
- For civil disturbances, coups, natural disasters, etc., the U.S. State Department sometimes creates special Task Forces to monitor them; for background information on such crises, call the State Department's Operations Center at 202-501-4444.
- For information concerning a terrorist threat or action, call the State Department's Counterterrorist Office at 202-647-9892.
- For security information and assessments via the Office of Intelligence and Threat call the OSAC Electronic Bulletin Board: 202-663-0787 (8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. EST).
- Local safety/crime agencies in the host country (discuss with on-site contacts or the US Embassy in host country before proceeding).
- In a crisis that is more general than IU-specific, it will be useful to stay in touch with NAFSA's SECUSS-L network (care should be exercised in doing so, in order to avoid contributing to the propagation of a rumor). The Health and Safety Subcommittee for NAFSA's Education Abroad Knowledge Community, may organize an operations center.
for the dissemination of information.

Large program providers may also have useful information, because of their extensive international networks: CIEE: (212) 822-2600; IES: (312) 944-1750 or (800) 995-2300.

C. Reporting and Recording Procedures: The OVST staff member will:

- ask for information about a number of issues, and
- will take careful notes of sufficient detail so as to be able to write a chronological sequence of events leading up to, during and after the emergency.
- The circumstances may require a designated observer be appointed charged with providing written details of the event as it unfolds.

PHASE III. OIA determines that the emergency is perceived rather than real and not widespread

It is important, at this stage, to control the dissemination of information, which must be shared responsibly, on a need-to-know basis. OIA will need to decide to respond at this point in one of two ways:

Response Scenario A: appropriate when the perceived emergency has not yet created widespread or persistent rumors

1. OIA will take appropriate steps to defuse the situation and reassure concerned parties.

2. In most cases, OIA will need to do no more at this point than reassure the concerned parent, student or other individual who has contacted OIA as the result of media coverage or rumor. The OIA staff member who calls back the party registering the concern in the first place should tell him or her that appropriate inquiries have been made, that we are confident program participants are secure, that the program is proceeding normally, and that the participants' welfare is being provided for, as before.

3. The IU Communications Director and the Office staff of OIA’s Study Abroad Office will be informed of what has occurred, and what the concerned parties have been told; it is important that all members of the staff be able to provide the same information in case other inquiries are received. OIA staff will also be told to whom they should direct all media inquiries.

4. Parents who request it can be given the telephone number of the appropriate Embassy abroad. However, embassies will not appreciate receiving calls from overwrought individuals, especially when there is no emergency.

5. The staff member handling the emergency should prepare a simple statement, check it with the OIA Associate Vice-President and/or the Associate Vice-President of Overseas Study if possible, and provide it to all other OIA staff who might answer calls. All calls on the matter should be forwarded to the Director of Study Abroad or other staff member who is handling the emergency if s/he is not available.
Response Scenario B: When a rumor is widespread and unusually persistent, and growing numbers of individuals, on or off campus, believe that an emergency really has occurred, or that participants are at risk

1. OIA will write a brief and accurate description of the perceived emergency, and will then communicate it to, and speak individually with:

   a. the IU Communications Director
   b. the Vice President of International Programs or his/her representative
   c. the Associate Vice President for Overseas Study
   d. the Vice Chancellor for Student Life
   e. the appropriate representative of the unit sponsoring the program
   f. all members of the OIA staff
   g. University Counsel (as appropriate)

2. If OIA deems it appropriate, the person(s) listed as emergency contacts of program participants will receive accurate information about the perceived emergency, and about IU’s response. The information will be substantively the same as that contained in the description distributed to the individuals in #1 above.

PHASE IV. OIA determines that the emergency is real

Response Scenario A: the emergency is real and could affect the entire program

1. OIA will consult with the Program Director or other staff members on site and in the U.S., and with the IU Communications Director of News & Media, in order to decide what specific measures should be taken in responding to the crisis, and whether or not a crisis management team should be convened. It may be necessary to send a representative from IU to assist with managing the crisis on the ground.

2. Once the appropriate response strategy has been determined, OIA will communicate directly, preferably by telephone, with the Program Director or other staff members and the affected students; this communication will contain a detailed description of the course of action recommended in responding to the crisis.

Students will be provided with verbal or written instructions as appropriate to the situation. If the matter is sufficiently serious, the Program Director or local coordinator will confirm that all program participants acknowledge receipt of this information in writing and fax or scan and email this signed acknowledgement to the Director of Study Abroad as soon as feasible.

3. OIA will take into account the following points in developing the written course of action:

   a. include a reasonable amount of detail in drafting the procedures;
b. reassure participants that steps are being taken to ensure their security and well-being, and that their cooperation is important in responding to the crisis;

c. tell participants that while it is not possible to eliminate all risk, we have had experience dealing with emergencies in the past, and that we will work with them in order to respond effectively;

d. tell participants if we have communicated with their emergency contacts;

e. direct participants to stay in close touch with the Program Director or local coordinator, to let him or her know of their precise whereabouts throughout the crisis, and to report any suspicious persons or packages or contacts;

f. remind students that if they are US citizens they will have registered with the US Embassy and that they may receive communication from the embassy and to maintain contact with them throughout the crisis;

g. tell participants to exercise common sense in responding to the crisis, and to avoid contact with or travel to the affected area (if they are not located at this area);

h. if appropriate, direct the Program Director or local coordinator and participants to remove all signs or any other objects at the academic center or at their home stays, that would call attention to them or to the program;

i. tell participants to keep a low profile, to avoid dress and behavior which will attract attention, to avoid using luggage tags, and to avoid places where Americans are known to congregate.

4. If the situation is sufficiently serious to warrant it, the Director of OIA will write a brief and accurate description of the event, and will then distribute it, with a copy of the written response strategy, to the following people:

a. the IU Communications Director of News & Media or his/her representative
b. the IU Vice President of International Affairs or his/her representative
c. the Associate Vice President for Overseas Study
d. the Vice President for Student Life
e. the appropriate representative of the unit sponsoring the program
f. all members of the OIA staff
g. The Dean of Students or his/her representative
h. University Counsel (as appropriate)

The Director will communicate when they can expect to receive another update from OIA.

5. Once the description has been emailed to the above individuals, OIA staff will direct all media requests for information to the IU Communications Director of News & Media or his/her representative in the Office of Communications and Marketing. In handling these requests, OIA staff will make every effort to appear cooperative, while at the same time letting the media know that OIA needs to avoid giving out information that might violate a student's right to confidentiality and that only the IU Office of Communications may respond to them directly.

6. The IU Office of Communications will provide no more information to the media than that contained in the Director's description; that Office should also coordinate and arrange with the Associate Vice President for International Affairs and/or the Director all press requests for interviews.

7. The Study Abroad Director should handle all requests for information, including those from parents, students and other members of the IU community.

8. Depending on circumstances, the Study Abroad Director will communicate with the emergency contacts of program participants (as indicated on their application forms) in order to provide accurate information about the emergency, and about IU's response. The information communicated will be substantively the same as that contained in the description distributed to the individuals in #4 above.

9. OIA will convene daily meetings to update those individuals who need to know the status of the crisis. They will be scheduled at consistent times each day so that individuals can attend as they need updated information and their schedule allows.

10. Responding to a serious crisis can take a toll on those involved. OIA will seek guidance from Counseling and Psychological Services on providing support to responders.

Response Scenario B: the emergency is real, and particular to one or more individual students

1. OIA will contact the Program Director or local coordinator, the IU Communications Director of News and Media, and other appropriate people abroad and in the U.S. in order to discuss with them the response to the crisis. OIA will be sure that all appropriate steps are being taken at this point to assure the immediate safety and welfare of participants, and will tell the student that their family/emergency contacts will be informed.

2. The Director will make these contacts, provide support to the family or other emergency contact persons, and work with them to determine a plan of action. The Director will communicate when they can expect to receive another update from OIA.

3. It may be necessary to send a representative from IU to assist with managing the crisis on the ground.

4. OIA will convene daily meetings to update those individuals who need to know the status of the crisis. They will be scheduled at consistent times each day so that individuals can attend as they need updated information and their schedule allows.

5. Responding to a serious crisis can take a toll on those involved. OIA will seek guidance from Counseling and Psychological Services on providing support to responders.
A special case: the death of a program participant

A. OIA will ask the Program Director or local coordinator at the site to:

- email or fax complete details about the circumstances surrounding the death
- confirm that the US Embassy or nearest Consulate in the country has been informed
- arrange for repatriation of remains, following any police or immigration procedures that need to be observed. Most IUPUI/IUPUC programs will require students to have the university’s GeoBlue Insurance plan. As part of this plan, they will have repatriation coverage which should be explained to government officials who normally handle repatriation for American citizens abroad.
- inform all students in the program about the death. (OIA will inform students on its other programs since many of the students abroad concurrently know each other but not until the repatriation procedure is in place and the family has been notified) OIA will make every effort to ensure that the program director and/or school staff receive the information of the death before the broader campus community learns of the death. Counseling and Psychological Services will be asked to provide support to students and to prepare faculty/staff to handle upset students and colleagues.
- arrange a memorial service on site (as appropriate).
- arrange counseling as necessary for program students and host families
- work with university officials to determine that if the cause of the death is infectious, how others students and their parents should be notified of any potential public health threat.

B. OIA will consult with the Dean of Students and Vice-President for Student Life regarding notification of next of kin. However, in most cases, if the police or embassy is called in, the next of kin are contacted by these professionals.

C. The Director will write a summary of the circumstances surrounding the death of the participant, and will notify all appropriate officials of the university.

D. OIA will convene daily meetings to update those individuals who need to know the status of the crisis. They will be scheduled at consistent times each day so that individuals can attend as they need updated information and their schedule allows

E. OIA should:
   - Inform the Dean of Students/Registrar/Bursar of the student death so that the student’s status is changed in all active databases to avoid sending any bills or mailings to the deceased or to the parents of the deceased
   - send condolences (a card, flowers or make a donation, according to family wishes)
- attend the memorial or funeral service, with the family’s permission
- check into fees and refund possibilities for unfinished academic term time/housing
- Inform all affected individuals of the IUPUI Day of Remembrance which will remember the loss of the faculty/staff/student.

F. Responding to a serious crisis can take a toll on those involved. OIA will seek guidance from Counseling and Psychological Services on providing support to responders.
